

Suzie Lewis

Executive Fellow

Managing Partner | Transform for Value

Expertise and areas of interest

Digital Transformation | AI
Business Model Reinvention

Suzie Lewis is a global business leader and executive coach with extensive experience in driving international transformation projects. She currently serves as the Managing Director of Transform for Value, an advisory firm that supports senior leaders and organizations on the human dimension of transformation, with a focus on building sustainable ecosystems and assuring sustainable change,

Before founding Transform for Value, Suzie served as a global Digital Transformation Leader for Airbus where she was responsible for developing and scaling the human-centred strategy for digital transformation across the organization. Before taking on this role, she founded and led Airbus' Leadership University. During her almost 20-year tenure in the aerospace industry, she led numerous flagship projects in the areas of culture change, digital transformation, innovation, strategy and governance, talent management, and lean/agile methodologies.

Suzie is a frequent keynote speaker and serves as a lecturer both for companies and business schools. She is the host of the popular Let's Talk Transformation podcast series, which in meanwhile 150+ episodes features world-class thought leaders exploring issues such as the future of work, platform-based business models, tech for good, new leadership trends, and more.

Suzie holds a BA in French and International Relations from Staffordshire University and an MA in French Literature from Toulouse University. She also is certified in the field of systemic coaching and in Agile and Design thinking.

With her deep expertise in human-centered transformation, system thinking, and leadership development, Suzie brings a powerful capability to bridge digital strategy and organizational culture to CFFO.

Suzie is based in Toulouse, France.